THIS WEEKEND: Intracoastal Waterway Cleanup

There's no better time to cleanup, than after a storm! Join the City of Palm Coast this Saturday, September 7th for the 12th annual Intracoastal Waterway Cleanup event. In the morning, join volunteers in protecting our community by removing trash in neighborhoods, along City paths, walkways and waterways. Then, at noon, stop at the Palm Coast Community Center to present your most unique FIND and enjoy some light refreshments with fellow volunteers. We hope to see you there! For more information, visit the City's website HERE.

Hurricane Dorian Update

This week, the City braved Hurricane Dorian, a storm that for most of us, was not a direct hit. However, your City mobilized once the storm became a concern for Palm Coast. City employees worked before, during and after the storm preparing the City in many ways. For example, before the storm, roads were cleared, trees were trimmed, canals were lowered, sewer pipes were tested, parks were prepped, sandbags were dispersed, trash was picked up, equipment was tied down, and so much more.

During the storm, the City's EOC, Emergency Operations Center, was opened at the City's main fire station, where City staff monitored the storm and coordinated resources with the emergency food unit, daycare for essential working City employees, setup the 24 hour customer service call center and prepared for recovery and response with the latest weather reports.

Immediately following the storm, your City got to work traveling every Palm Coast street, making sure roads were passable for our residents including emergency personnel. Cleanup began at City parks, along road rights of way and at all City buildings. Many residents sent thanks to City employees via Facebook, Nextdoor, Twitter and through email, like Niki "Thank you for being there for the residents of Palm Coast! Your hard work is appreciated." Kathy tells us "Great bunch of dedicated people." And Patti said "I want to say thank you to all the service people who are away from their own families to keep others safe. THANK YOU! BE SAFE!" To learn more about how your City is prepared for this, and other storms, see the News and Notifications link below or visit the City's website HERE.

"I cannot begin to thank you all enough for everything you did for us during Hurricane Dorian.....super organized and professional...kept us all informed...thank you, thank you....thank you!!!"
